CIVIL SERVICE FOR ALL HANDS

Employees on Battlefield Work Must Comply with Requirements. Ten Days Notice Given to Produce Necessary Papers.

With the evident intention of placing all of the employees in the Gettysburg National Park under Civil Service regulations, announcement is made that competitive examinations will be held here on June first for the positions of carpenter, carpenter's helper, concrete builder, painter, paver, steam engineer, and steam engineer helper. The wage in each instance is $2.00 a day.

Applicants will not be assembled for these examinations but will be rated on the experience shown in their applications, which are sworn to, and the physical ability as evidenced by a medical certificate. Application must be made on the prescribed form which, with necessary instructions, may be obtained from the Civil Service Commission's local representative, George P. Black, at the Post Office.

Of the entire force now at work on the battlefield avenues there are eleven men who are not under the regulations of the Civil Service Commission and it is expected that they will all take the steps necessary to bring them under the provisions which will allow their continued employment.

The others who are under Civil Service were appointed prior to 1903, under the provisions of an Act of Congress, and were not required to take any tests.

Notification will be given in the usual manner of the coming examinations and all persons wishing to take them should secure blanks and file their applications at once with Stewart Wilson, secretary of the Civil Service Board, in order to allow time for any necessary corrections, and to arrange for the examination.

THREATENED TROUBLE

Gettysburg Street Has Early Morning Excitement.

The runaway of two four-horse teams in Centre Square this morning was prevented only by the falling of one horse and the quick action of J. C. Wierman. Charles Fissel's team got beyond control while going through the Square and Dennis Fissel's followed when they saw the other horses start. The first team was stopped when one of the horses fell, and Mr. Wierman helped to control the others. No damage was done. It is not known what started the horses.

The Senior Class of the Littlestown High School spent the day on the battlefield. The trip was made by automobiles and luncheon was enjoyed on the field.

NATIVE BRAHMIN TO HAVE SCHOOL

East Indian will Give Instruction to Special Students at Gettysburg Seminary during the Summer Months.

Permission to hold a "Telugu School" at the Gettysburg Theological Seminary during the next three months was granted this morning at the annual meeting of the board of trustees which was attended by thirty one of a membership of forty four.

The school will be in charge of a Brahmin from India. His name is Bhushan and the course of instruction will be started next Monday. The idea is to teach prospective missionaries to India the Telugu language so that their work there may be easier from the start, and they will not be confronted with the task of learning the native tongue during the time when they are most subject to homesickness and the ailments of the climate in which they work.

Up to the present time there have been eight enrollments, several of which come from the local Seminary. There have been inquiries from other Lutheran bodies as well as from those of other denominations.

Permission was also granted for holding the annual sessions of the Lutheran Summer Assembly in the Seminary buildings for one week, beginning July 30.

The treasurer's report showed a total of investments aggregating $273,000, an increase of about $1,000 over last year. During the year there was an outlay of about $6,000 for repairs and running expenses.

Other business transacted at the meeting was of a routine character.

Picture Presented.

This afternoon the beautiful oil painting, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey C. Miller, of Philadelphia, was formally presented to the Seminary. It is a copy of Leonardo da Vinci's "The Last Supper" and was painted in 1906 and 1907 by James B.

AT NEW OXFORD

Memorial Day Plans in Charge of Veterans' Sons.

Members of the New Oxford Camp, Sons of Veterans, are making preparations for the proper observance of Memorial Day in that place and vicinity. During the early part of the day they will follow their usual custom of visiting the cemeteries at neighboring towns, and in rural districts, to decorate the graves of fallen heroes. The exercises at New Oxford will be held at the usual time—5 o'clock p. m. on Monday, May 31st. All the different organizations of the town have been invited to participate in the parade, which will be headed by the Pleasant Hill Band. Hon. W. H. Long, of Hanover, will deliver the oration in New Oxford cemetery.

TIMES PUBLISHES ENTIRE SCHEDULE

Playing Program for Summer First Appears Locally in this Paper. Five Saturday Games on Nixon Field. Other Dates.

The complete schedule for the Blue Ridge League appears to-day in The Gettysburg Times. It was adopted Wednesday evening at a meeting of directors from the six towns in Hagerstown.

By it the season will open at Hanover on May 27, and the neighboring town will play here the following day. Gettysburg plays Frederick here on the morning of Memorial Day, and at Frederick in the afternoon. Both Independence Day games are away from home.

It was decided by the directors to place in the league treasury ten per cent of all the gate receipts instead of five per cent, the remainder to be divided between the clubs playing.

Umpires selected were W. B. McAttee, of Baltimore, chief, and Gene Hanks and L. B. Glatts, assistants. Their salaries will be $100 a month and traveling expenses.

J. A. Holtzworth was Gettysburg's representative at Wednesday evening's meeting.

In a variety of uniforms, the vanguard of Gettysburg's "Patriots" appeared for their first practice on Nixon Field this morning and a likely looking lot of base ball artists they are.

Kelly, of Baltimore, catcher and fielder, delighted the bleacher crowd both with his stick work and his fielding; Medlar, of Lancaster, third baseman, showed form in batting practice; John Lower, of McKnightstown, pitcher, was out to the delight of his many fan friends; Bill Stair, one of Gettysburg's last year favorites, had his first try-out though the familiar khaki blouse was missing to the disappointment of his admirers; Rudolph, another pitcher and fielder made a highly favorable impression; Carl Perry, of Baltimore, first baseman, arrived on the morning train too late for practice.

Of the local boys Oyler, Allison, Hall, and Bream were out with the squad and showed the form to be expected of them all season.

All told, the first practice made a highly favorable impression. Morning and afternoon practices will be the rule and, with the bleachers half filled for the initial try-out, big crowds may be expected daily on Nixon Field.

SEVERE ACTION AGAINST GUIDES

All Soliciting in Center of Town will be Thing of the Past if New Ordinance is Enforced. Council Holds Meeting.

Taking the most drastic action on record to curb battlefield guides, and solicitors for garages, the town council, by unanimous vote of those present, passed an ordinance forbidding soliciting at any place on Centre Square or on any one of the first four blocks from the Square. The meeting was held Wednesday evening.

This will remove entirely, it is believed, the annoyance to automobile tourists, unless the guides and solicitors want to establish themselves at places some distance from the larger hotels and the central business district. The ordinance provides that in all other parts of town, except the Square and the four blocks indicated, soliciting shall be prohibited between the two curb lines—thus requiring the guides and runners to stay on the pavements and preventing their stopping any cars.

Council also passed an ordinance requiring all automobiles and other vehicles to keep to the right in going through the Square and requiring them to keep as close to the curb as conditions permit. Cars and vehicles stopping at the curb must stand at right angles to the pavement. Borough Attorney Swope said that the State laws covered the matter of cars having open their muffler cut-out.

Other business transacted by council included the granting to Officer Smiley of $10 toward a uniform, payment to be made $1 monthly; the giving of instructions to Borough Solicitor Swope to take up with the Western Maryland Railway the changing of their tracks at Stratton Street to conform with the borough grade; the ordering of a fireplug at the corner of Lincoln avenue and Mummashburg street; the ordering of an electric light at the alley on Washington street between High and Middle; and the ordering of notification of removal within ten days sent for the house at the foot of Seminary Ridge between West Middle street and Springs avenue.

PLAYER DIES

Hanover Base Ball Man Dies in Bath Tub.

The first tragedy in Blue Ridge League base ball occurred at Hanover Wednesday afternoon when Third Baseman Percell of the Hanover team dropped over dead in a bath tub from an attack of acute indigestion. His death took place at the Mansion House. Percell, who was 26 years old and a resident of Philadelphia, had just recovered from an illness with indigestion before coming to Hanover.

SCARLET FEVER AT EMMITSBURG

Every Precaution Taken to Prevent Spread of Disease. School Closed by Health Officer. Said to be Mild Form.

Due to an outbreak of scarlet fever, and fearful that it would spread, Dr. Ralph Browning, county health officer, on Wednesday ordered the Emmitsburg public schools closed.

There are now three cases of the fever in Emmitsburg, and prompt steps have been taken to prevent a spread of the disease. The latest case, which developed Tuesday, was that of Jesse Stone, the oldest son of Dr. D. E. Stone, of Emmitsburg. Joseph Zimmerman and Richard Biggs are the other lads having the fever. They are said to be chums and it is believed that in this manner they contracted the disease. All of them are under fifteen years of age. The cases are said to be very mild.

The school which was closed is the only public school in Emmitsburg, the High School students going to Thurmont. Miss Mary Shuff is the principal of the closed school, and the other teachers are Misses Madeline Frailey and Clara Rowe. All of the teachers reside at Emmitsburg.

It is said that people in Emmitsburg are alarmed over the outbreak of the fever. All the homes where the cases are, are under strict quarantine, with the large cards on the front of the house. The school has been fumigated three or four times, following the outbreak of the other two cases, and each day disinfectants were used.

Another large school in Emmitsburg is St. Euphemia's Parochial school, a Catholic institution, which is attended by about 260 students. No cases of the fever have been reported from this school.

INVALID BREAKS HIP

Falls while Going from his Chair to Cot.

George W. Kaltrider, who lives with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Geiman, met with a very serious accident at their home, at the Fairview Mills, close to Waldheim, Reading township, about 2:30 o'clock on Wednesday morning. Mr. Kaltrider, who is in the 85th year of his age, for the past four weeks, owing to some dropsical trouble, has been unable to sleep in bed, and spent most of his time on a chair and cot in his room.

In attempting to pass from his chair to the cot, it is presumed that he was seized with a slight attack of vertigo, and in falling to the floor sustained a broken left hip. Dr. H. D. Leh, of Hampton, was summoned, but owing to the age of the patient, little could be done for the adjustment of the fracture, other than to make him as comfortable as possible, and it is feared the accident may hasten his end.

GERMANY IS READY TO YIELD

Ships Must be Unarmed and Carry No Contraband.

LOOKS FAVORABLE TO U. S.

The Frye Case is Thrown Into Prize Court Despite the Demand of Washington.

Washington, May 20.—Official information was received that Germany's reply to the American note will not be completed for at least a week, and probably will not reach Washington for ten days.

It is now known with some definiteness that Germany will indicate her willingness not to have her submarines act toward all merchantmen as toward destroyers or cruisers, but will give ample time for passengers and crew to leave, provided merchantmen are unarmed, or if passengers and contraband traffic are separated.

That position is looked upon with some favor, provided it is suggested as a modus vivendi or temporary arrangement, and does not involve the relinquishment by the United States of the rights of its citizens to travel anywhere on the high seas on enemy or belligerent unarmed ships.

There is an insistence by the United States, however, that the principles of law and humanity expressed in its note must be recognized and admitted by Germany, and that any intention to destroy American lives on the Lusitania must be disavowed. That the United States will stand firmly on the principles set forth in its note has been conveyed indirectly and informally to German since the communication left Washington.

Another factor in the situation that is expected to be clarified in a day or two is that with respect to Great Britain over the embargoes proclaimed by the allies.

That a note has been in preparation on the subject and is virtually completed is authoritatively known, but it was learned that President Wilson probably will not make any move in that direction until Germany's reply is received. He is said to be unwilling to complicate the problem by new representations, and is understood to believe that the issue between the United States and Germany must be settled clearly on the questions presented in the note, and that the United States should act without obligation and in its own way in the correspondence with Great Britain or other belligerents.

Henry H. Morgan, American consul general at Hamburg, has cabled the state department that Germany has completely ignored the American note of April 28, and has placed the William P. Frye case before a prize court. Secretary Bryan has asked Ambassador Gerard at Berlin to inquire of the German government if the sending of the Frye case to a prize court is intended as a reply to the American note.

Officials in Washington were greatly surprised when advised of the action of the German government in failing to answer a formal note from the United States before taking an action which this government had specifically protested against. Because of the strained relations between the governments, officials are at a loss to comprehend this latest move in German diplomacy.

MEXICANS ATTACK U. S. SHIP
Crew Returns Fire and Customs Official is Killed.

San Diego, May 20.—The American fishing launch New Ancono arrived here with bullet holes in her hull, received, her captain, Joseph Escalante, declared, in an attack by the Mexican patrol launch Ensenada.

Captain Escalante said he was attacked eight miles off shore and half way between Ensenada, Lower California, and San Diego, and was flying the American flag. His crew of three men crouched behind fish nets, fired eighteen shots and the Ensenada then sheered off, the captain reported.

Ensenada port authorities and the American owned fishing boats have been at odds for some time. Messages received from Ensenada stated that one of the Mexican customs officers aboard the patrol boat was shot five times by the American fishermen, dying shortly after the arrival of the patrol boat at the Mexican port.

SENHOR ARRIAGA.

Portugal's President Retains Office Despite Revolution.

After a night of terror, broken by another bombardment by warships in the harbor, Lisbon is again quiet. More than 100 persons, including many Spaniards, are reported to have been killed outright, and scores of others were maimed by shells from the war craft.

The Mundo says the revolutionary committee, not wishing to create difficulties, but rather to avoid them, has come to the conclusion that inasmuch as Senor Arriaga, president of the republic, respected the revolutionary movement he will be continued in office, conforming absolutely to constitutional law, until the expiration of his term, Oct. 5 next.

GERMANS CROSS SAN ON GALICIAN FRONT

Russian Forces Lose Hold on River Defences.

Vienna, May 20.—The Austro-German troops have forced a passage of the San river, along a wide front between the fortress of Przemyel and the Vistula river, which makes it appear that the San line will be untenable and the isolation of Przemyel inevitable, if Field Marshal Baron Conrad von Hotzendorf, the Austro-Hungarian chief of staff, persists in his advance.

The Russians are reported still to be suffering from a lack of ammunition and the demoralization of the units which made a long and hasty retreat from the Dunajec river and the Carpathians.

The Austro-German victories have placed the Teutonic forces in possession of not only practically the whole of the Galician oil fields, but also the copper mine near Kielce.

This is considered of great importance in view of the attempts made to cut the supply of petroleum, gasoline and copper.

Collapse of Russians Feared.
London, May 20.—"Never since the war began has any one day brought so grave a bulletin as that received Wednesday night," says the Petrograd correspondent of the Post.

"On this occasion, for the first time since hostilities opened, I failed to find any indications that suggest a promising set-off to what on its face seems something like a collapse of the Russian forces. Over a front extending some 200 miles the Germans have caused the Russians to retreat."

"After the experiences of the past few months this seems almost incredible and almost compels the belief that the best part of the truth about the entire situation remains hidden."

"The official organ conveys the impression that what the Russians have done is only to succeed in escaping annihilation by a series of more or less masterly movements to the rear. It is admitted that the German plan of compelling the abandonment of an invasion of Hungary by a fierce onslaught from Cracow has been successful."

GET ORDER FOR 8000 CANNON

Bethlehem, Pa., May 20.—The Bethlehem Steel company received an order for 8000 cannon from Lord Itchenor, of the British war office.

The order was accompanied by a check for $16,150,000, partly for work already done by the Bethlehem Steel company for the British government and partly an advance payment for material that will go into the 8000 new field pieces.

German Losses Estimated at 2,000,000
London, May 20.—The total of German losses in the war on both fronts down to March 31 is close to 1,500,000 men, and losses since that date are certainly sufficient to put the present total over the 2,000,000 mark, in the opinion of the Chronicle.

BRITISH CABINET IS RESHAPING

Premier Asquith Confirms Announcement of Changes.

BALFOUR FOR NAVAL HEAD

Coalition Ministry Composed of Strongest Men of All Parties Indicated in Statement.

London, May 20.—Premier Asquith announced in the house of commons that steps were in contemplation that involved a reconstruction of the government upon a broader personal and political basis.

The Labor party decided to accept Mr. Asquith's invitation to be represented in the new coalition government. Arthur Henderson, M. P., and secretary of the Labor party, will join the cabinet.

In his announcement to the commons, Premier Asquith said: "Nothing has been definitely arranged as yet, but in order to avoid any possible misapprehension, I wish to make clear here and now three things:

"First, any changes will not affect the position of the prime minister or of the foreign secretary (Sir Edward Grey); second, there will be no change of any kind in the policy of the country as regards the continued prosecution of the war with all possible energy and by means of every available resource, and third, and last, and of great importance to the honorable friends behind me and I have no doubt to the opposition, is this:

"Any reconstruction of the cabinet that may be made will be for the purposes of the war alone, and is not to be taken in any quarter or for any reason as indicating anything in the nature of a surrender or a compromise on the part of any person, or body of persons, of their several political ideals."

"This is as far as I can go. Nothing definite has yet taken place, but if any arrangement is made the house will have the fullest opportunity of expressing its views."

There is a widespread belief that Baron Fisher has tendered his resignation as first sea lord, but such arrangements will be made as will enable him to retain his post under the new first lord of the admiralty, who is expected to replace Winston Spencer Churchill, if he does not assume the first lordship himself.

One report is that A. J. Balfour, the former British premier, will succeed Mr. Churchill.

The Morning Post has led in the criticism of Mr. Churchill. Its chief charge has been that Mr. Churchill insisted upon the unsuccessful attempt to force the passage of the Dardanelles with the fleet alone, against the opinion of the sea lords; that the enterprise he personally directed of taking the naval brigade to Antwerp was a costly failure, and that the responsibility was his for Rear Admiral Craddock meeting the German Admiral von Spee off Chili with an inferior squadron.

DR. HIBBEN URGES WAR PREPAREDNESS

Tells Peace Convention U. S. Must Make Ready.

Mohonk Lake, N. Y., May 20.—Dr. John Grier Hibben, the president of Princeton university, stirred the Lake Mohonk Conference on International Arbitration by taking issue with pacifists who favor disarmament and by advocating "a wise preparedness of our military forces in the United States."

"I do not advocate preparedness for war," he said, "but a preparedness against war—a preparedness which in the event of the catastrophe of war itself will prevent the enormous initial sacrifice of human lives which has characterized every war in which the United States has been engaged throughout our history."

"I am not in sympathy with the peace propaganda which is being prosecuted in many of our schools, so far, at least, as it endeavors to quicken the peace sentiment by impressing upon the minds of the young children the horrors or the economical losses of war."

Without naming any of the belligerents, Dr. Hibben asserted that one false tendency to obstruct the progress of peace was that "present terrible war has developed certain practices and usages which will revolutionize the accepted restrictions of international law, so that hereafter all immemorial obligations of nation to nation in a state of war will be swept away."

"By all means let us pay any price which can buy peace," he concluded. "Restraint of passion, long suffering, sacrifice of material wealth or of every personal convenience and comfort. Let us sacrifice it all; everything which can buy peace. But let us not forget that there are some things which cannot buy peace. If we sacrifice them in order to secure peace, the peace thus sought becomes for us the veriest torment of a living hell."

"We dare not trade honor for peace, we dare not betray duty in order that we may bargain for peace. We dare not indulge in the enjoyment of the blessings of peace while we turn deaf ears to the cry of distress or to the summons of a righteous cause."

Never in the twenty-one years of its existence had the Lake Mohonk conference heard such a call to arms. The Princeton president's appeal aroused intense interest and discussion among more than 200 delegates from all parts of the country.

BOY RUNS AWAY
Disappears on Excursion—Whereabouts now Unknown.

John Lutz, who for the past three years has been making his home with the family of Nicholas Lingg, near New Oxford, accompanied the excursion to Baltimore on Thursday morning, and nothing has been heard from him since that time.

Mrs. Lingg provided the boy with funds for a ticket besides extra change to spend during the day, and he was to return in the evening. He was to accompany Mrs. A. P. Wagner, Mrs. Lingg's daughter, but after getting on the train he kept out of her sight.

Some days before the excursion the youth sold a number of pigeons and collected the money, but told the family he would not receive the pay until Saturday. He also collected other money, all of which he secreted about himself, and kept the family under the impression that what Mrs. Lingg had given him was all he had. Mrs. Lingg had also just presented him with an entire new outfit of clothing.

Efforts to locate the boy in Baltimore have been fruitless up to this date. He was secured from the Vincent De Paul Society in Baltimore, three years ago. He is now 15 years old.

Sword, of Philadelphia. It is 23½ by 6 feet and has been hung in the Seminary Chapel. Illuminated by overhead electric light bulbs it shows to great advantage and the beautiful colors are brought out exceptionally well. The lighting arrangement also was the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Miller.

The program this afternoon was opened with the singing of "Beautiful Savior" by a quartet composed of Messrs. Pee, Getzendanner, Rupley and J. W. Wolf. The President of the Board of Trustees offered prayer and the formal presentation address was made by Dr. H. C. Alleman, former pastor of the church in Philadelphia which Mr. and Mrs. Miller attend. Dr. Alleman explained the original painting and gave a brief history of it together with the account of the manner in which Mr. Sword happened to paint the present picture. It was done for a large Episcopal church in Washington at the instance of its rector. Later the vestry repudiated the contract, saying that it had been made without proper authority, and the beautiful painting was secured by the people who later donated it to the Seminary.

Dr. J. A. Singmaster responded to Dr. Alleman and spoke with the greatest gratitude for the generosity which prompted the gift. The quartet sang "Jesus, Master of the Feast," and the exercises came to a close with the benediction.

Alumni Meeting

The annual meeting of the alumni of the Seminary was held on Wednesday evening. The address was made by Dr. Marion J. Kline, of Altoona, and an informal reception followed at the refectory. Priest, Rev. S. C. Burger, returned missionary; and Rev. Harry Snyder.

This evening the graduation exercises will be held in College Church and the public is cordially invited to be present.

HAS HIS JOKE

Produced Bail before Squire, then Presented himself to Officer.

Harry Stevens, wanted on a charge of receiving stolen goods, came into town this morning of his own accord, appeared before Squire Harnish and gave $300 bail for his appearance before a justice of the peace in Harrisburg on June 9. Stevens bought a horse from A. L. Yarnham, of Harrisburg, for $5.00. Yarnham is said to have held some grudge against the Heidlersburg man and soon afterward laid an information on the charge of receiving stolen goods.

Detective Fernwalt, of the Reading, Constable Morrell, of Biglerville, and several York Springs citizens, figured in a vain attempt to apprehend Stevens last week. After getting a receipt for the $300 bail from Squire Harnish this morning he determined to have a little fun. Approaching Officer Emmons who had never seen Stevens before he said,

"Officer, I guess you would like to get hold of that man, Henry Stevens. How much would you give me to tell you where you can find him?"

The chief of police said he knew about Stevens, would certainly like to get a look at him and handed over a dollar bill for the forthcoming information. Stevens then showed the receipt for the bail, announced that he was the man wanted and returned the dollar, after which he went on his way rejoicing.

paid for gas in Gettysburg. Mr. Keith stated that the Public Service Commission had made an exhaustive examination here following complaint laid by Henry Kalbfleisch, concerning the price and the quality of the output, and that both were regarded as satisfactory.

A bill from receivers for the Wilson Maltman Electric Company for services in connection with plans for the proposed electric light plant was tabled. They were paid $200 and now have a bill for $153 additional. Council understood that the former amount covered everything due.

OUR BRIGHT BLUE SUN.

It is the Air or Moisture That Makes It Look White or Red.

There is a general belief that sunlight is white and therefore that the sun is white. But this is a long way from the real condition of things. The sun is a bright blue, as blue in color as seems the water of a deep mountain lake. It is the air that makes the sun seem white.

Everybody has noticed when the air is very foggy that the sun appears as a red ball, as red as a red-hot poker. Yet we know the sun hasn't changed at all. It is the mist in the air that makes the color seem different. And in the dawn and dusk, no matter how clear the air may be, the sun is much redder in color than when it is overhead in the middle of the day. The reason for this is that in the morning and evening we see the sun through a thicker belt of air. It is this thicker air which makes it look redder, just as it is the fog which has the same effect. If the air were taken away entirely, then we should expect the sun to be still blue.

Since in the middle of the day the sun is white, how could it be less red? By being blue.

The atmosphere is really like a thick orange colored veil spread between the world and the bright blue sun. Like a veil it dims the light, and its color acts as a filter. Actually the air stops most of the blue rays, but lets nearly all the orange colored rays come through.

It has been quite definitely shown that if it were not for the orange colored veil of the air we could not live upon the earth today. Even as it is the actinic rays of sunlight give sunstroke in summer, and it is in the blue and violet rays that the damage is done. The air softens the sunlight enough for us to bear it.

A few million years hence the sun will be yellow, and already some of its earlier blue heat is gone. But for a million years ahead—"we should worry!"—New York American.

TAKING A PERFECT BREATH.

Proper Method of Filling the Entire Lung Cavity With Air.

It does not suffice to breathe pure air. It must be properly breathed. All breathing should be done through the nose—never through the mouth—and, if possible, in the open air, or, at least, before an open window, and several times daily.

The passage of air through the nose has the advantage of being warmed and moistened and, in reality, filtered.

While deep breathing has been advised and written about during recent years, it is interesting to know that oriental teachers and philosophers have known and practiced it for generations. This best of all practices may not promote muscular strength or increase the size of the biceps, but it surely makes directly for the health of the lungs, heart, liver and abdominal organs, and thereby greatly and surely serves the brain.

To take a perfect breath:

Stand erect by an open window or out of doors. Pucker up the lips as though starting to whistle and slowly blow out the breath and empty the lungs of air. Then, closing the mouth, breathe through the nose, inhaling slowly and steadily, filling the entire lung cavity, which is done by bringing into play the diaphragm, which, descending, exerts a gentle pressure on the abdomen. In the final movement the lower part of the abdomen will be drawn in, which movement gives the lungs a support and also helps to fill the highest points of the lungs. Retain the breath for a few seconds. Then once again pucker up the lips as if to whistle and through the small opening slowly and gently exhale the breath.—Boston Post.

Ends Life, Fearing Lawsuit.

Georgetown, Del., May 20.—Worry over a threatened lawsuit caused Edward Dickerson to commit suicide by taking poison. Dickerson was threatened with suit for failure to deliver sweet potatoes on a contract, and although he had been assured that he had no need to fear that the case could ever be decided against him he had continued to worry over the matter.

Odd Fellows Elect Hanyen.

Stroudsburg, Pa., May 20.—At the session of the grand lodge of Pennsylvania, I. O. O. F., Fred C. Hanyen, of Scranton, was elected grand treasurer to succeed M. Richard Muckle, on the first ballot. P. P. Sherry, of Philadelphia, also was a candidate.

BASEBALL LEGACY FOR BOY.

Little Daniel McVey, Jr., of Newcas- tle, Pa., is to receive a bequest of $300 "to provide a baseball education." The odd legacy is left him by John McVey, an uncle. The boy is six years old.

Little Dan now prances around the farm twirling a baseball. His particular hero is Hans Wagner, shortstop of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Le Comte de Sabron, captain of French cavalry, takes to his quarters to raise by hand a motherless Irish terrier pup, and names it Pitcheoune.

CHAPTER II.—Sabron dines with the Marquise d'Esclignac and meets Miss Julia Redmond, American heiress, who sings for him an English ballad that lingers in his memory.

CHAPTER III.—Sabron, trying to save Pitcheoune's life, declines a second invitation to dinner because of a "very sick friend."

CHAPTER IV.—No more invitations come from the Chateau d'Esclignac. Pitcheoune, though lame from his accident, thrives and is devoted to Sabron.

CHAPTER V.—Sabron and Pitcheoune meet the Marquise and Miss Redmond and after the story of Pitcheoune is told Sabron is forgiven and invited to dinner again.

CHAPTER XVII.

Out of the Desert.

From a dreamy little villa, whose walls were streaming with bougainvillea, Miss Redmond looked over Algiers, over the tumult and hum of it, to the sea. Tremont, by her side, looked at her. From head to foot the girl was in white. On one side the bougainvillea laid its scarlet flow-ers against the stainless linen of her dress, and on her other arm was the Red Cross.

The American girl and the French- man had become the best of friends. She considered him a sincere com-panion and an unconscious confid-ante. He had not yet decided what he thought of her, or how. His prom-ise to remain on the yacht had been broken and he paid his godmother and Miss Redmond constant visits at their villa, which the marquise rented for the season.

There were times when Tremont thought Miss Redmond's exile a fa-talistic one, but he always found her fascinating and a lovely woman, and he wondered what it was that kept him from laying his title and his for-tune at her feet. It had been under- stood between the godmother and himself that he was to court Miss Redmond a l'Americaine.

"She has been brought up in such a shocking fashion, Robert, that noth-ing but American love-making will appeal to her. You will have to make love to her, Robert. Can you do it?" "But, marmaine, I might as well make love to a sister of charity."

"There was la Belle Heloise, and no woman is immune."

"I think she is engaged to some American cowboy who will come and claim her, marmaine."

"Rubbish!" she said. "She is en-gaged to no one, Bob. She is an idealist, a Rosalind; but that will not prevent her from making an excel-lent wife."

"She is certainly very beautiful," said the Duc de Tremont, and he told Julia so.

"You are very beautiful," said the Duc de Tremont to Miss Redmond, as she leaned on the balcony of the villa. The bougainvillea leaned against her breast. "When you stood in the hos-pital under the window and sang to the poor devils, you looked like an angel."

"Poor things!" said Julia Redmond. "Do you think that they liked it?"

"Liked it?" exclaimed the young man enthusiastically, "couldn't you see by their faces? One poor devil said to me: 'One can die better now, Monsieur. There was no hope for him, it seems.'"

Tremont and Marquise d'Esclig-nac had dotedly gone with Julia Redmond every day at a certain hour to the different hospitals, where Julia, after rendering some slight services to the nurses—for she was not need-ed—sang for the sick, standing in the outer hallway of the building open on every side. She knew that Sabron was not among these sick. Where he was or what sounds his ears might hear, she could not know; but she sang for him, and the fact put a sweetness in her voice that touched the ears of the suffering and uplifted those who were not too far down to be uplifted, and as for the dying, it helped them, as the soldier said, to die.

She had done this for several days, but now she was restless. Sabron was not in Algiers. No news had been brought of him. His regiment had been ordered out farther into the desert that seemed to stretch away into infinity, and the vast cruel sands knew, and the stars knew where Sabron had fallen and what was his history, and they kept the secret.

The marquise made herself as much at home as possible in Algiers, put up with the inefficiency of native servants, and her duty was done. Her first romantic elan was over. Sabron had recalled to her the idyl of a love-affair of a quarter of a century be-fore, but she had been for too long Marquise d'Esclignac to go back to an ideal. She pined to have her niece a duchess, and never spoke the unfortunate Sabron's name.

They were surrounded by fashion-able life. As soon as their arrival had been made known there had been a flutter of cards and a passing of carriages and automobiles, and this worldly life added to the unhappi-ness and restlessness of Julia. Among the guests had been one woman whom she found sympathetic; the woman's eyes had drawn Julia to her. It was Contesse de la Maine, a widow, young as herself and, as Julia said, vastly better-looking. Turning to Tremont on the balcony, when he told her she was beautiful, she said:

"Madame de la Maine is my ideal of loveliness."

The young man wrinkled his fair brow.

"Do you think so, Mademoiselle? Why?"

"She has character as well as per-fect lines. Her eyes look as though they could weep and laugh. Her mouth looks as though it could say adorable things."

Tremont laughed softly and said:

"Go on, you amuse me."

"And her hands look as though they could caress and comfort. I like her awfully. I wish she were my friend."

Tremont said nothing, and she glanced at him suddenly.

"She says such lovely things about you, Monsieur."

"Really? She is too indulgent."

"Don't be worldly," said Miss Redmond gravely, "be human. I like you best so. Don't you agree with me?"

"Madame de la Maine is a very charming woman," said the young man, and the girl saw a change come over his features.

At this moment, as they stood so together, Tremont pulling his mus-tache and looking out through the bougainvillea vines, a dark figure made its way through the garden to the villa, came and took its position under the balcony where the duke and Miss Redmond leaned. It was a na-tive, a man in filthy rags. He turned his face to Tremont and bowed low to the lady.

"Excellency," he said in broken French, "my name is Hammet Abou. I was the ordonnance of Monsieur le Capitaine de Sabron."

"What?" exclaimed Tremont, "what did you say?"

"Ask him to come up here," said Julia Redmond, "or, no—let us go down to the garden."

"It is damp," said Tremont, "let me get you a shawl."

"No, no, I need nothing."

"She had hurried before him down the little stairs leading into the gar-den from the balcony, and she had be-gun to speak to the native before Tre-mont appeared. In this recital he ad-dressed his words to Julia alone.

"I am a very poor man, Excellency," he said in a mellifluous tone, "and very sick."

"Have you any money, Monsieur?"

"Pray do not suggest it," said the duke sharply. "Let him tell what he will; we will pay him later."

"I have been very sick," said the man. "I have left the army. I do not like the French army," said the native simply.

"You are very frank," said Tremont brutally. "Why do you come here at any rate?"

"Hush," said Julia Redmond imploringly. "Do not anger him, Mon-sieur, he may have news." She asked: "Have you news?" and there was a note in her voice that made Tremont glance at her.

"I have seen the excellency and her grandmother," said the native, "many times going into the garrison."

"What news have you of Captain de Sabron?" asked the girl directly. Without replying, the man said in a melancholy voice:

"I was his ordonnance, I saw him fall in the battle of Dibal. I saw him shot in the side. I was shot, too. See?"

He started to pull away his rags. Tremont clutched him.

"You beast," he muttered, and pushed him back. "If you have any thing to say, say it."

Looking at Julia Redmond's color-less face, the native asked meaningly: "Does the excellency wish any news?"

"Yes," said Tremont, snaking him. "And if you do not give it, it will be the worse for you."

"Monsieur le Capitaine fell, and I fell, too; I saw no more."

Tremont said:

"You see the fellow is half lunatic and probably knows nothing about Sabron. I shall put him out of the garden."

But Miss Redmond paid no atten-tion to her companion. She controlled her voice and asked the man:

"Was the Capitaine de Sabron alone?"

"Except," said the native steadily, with a glance of disgust at the duke, "except for his little dog."

"Ah!" exclaimed Julia Redmond, with a catch in her voice, "do you hear that? He must have been his servant. What was the dog's name?"

"My name," said the native, "is Hammet Abou."

To her at this moment Hammet Abou was the most important person in North Africa.

"What was the little dog's name, Hammet Abou?"

The man raised his eyes and looked at the white woman with admiration.

"Pitcheoune," he said, and saw the effect.

Tremont saw the effect upon her, too.

"I have a wife and ten children," said the man, "and I live far away."

"Heavens! I haven't my purse," said Julia Redmond. "Will you not give him something, Monsieur?"

"Wait," said Tremont, "wait. What else do you know? If your information is worth anything to us we will pay you, don't be afraid."

"Perhaps the excellency's grand-mother would like to hear, too," said the man naively.

Julia Redmond smiled; the youth-ful Marquise d'Esclignac!

Once more Tremont seized the man by the arm and shook him a little.

"If you don't tell what you have to say and be quick about it, my dear fellow, I shall hand you over to the police."

"What for?" said the man, "what have I done?"

"Well, what have you got to tell, and how much do you want for it?"

"I want one hundred francs for this," and he pulled out from his dirty rags a little packet and held it up cautiously.

It looked like a package of letters and a man's pocketbook.

"You take it," said the Duc de Tre-mont to Julia Redmond, "you take it, Mademoiselle." She did so without hesitation; it was evidently Sabron's pocketbook, a leather one with his initials upon it, together with a little package of letters. On the top she saw her letter to him. Her hand trembled so that she could scarcely hold the package. It seemed to be all that was left to her. She heard Tre-mont ask:

"Where did you get this, you miser-able dog?"

"After the battle," said the man coolly, with evident truthfulness, "I was very sick. We were in camp several days at —. Then I got better and went along the dried river bank to look for Monsieur le Capitaine, and I found this in the sands."

"Do you believe him?" asked Julia Redmond.

"Hum," said Tremont. He did not wish to tell her he thought the man capable of robbing the dead body of his master. He asked the native:

"Have you no other news?"

The man was silent. He clutched the rags at his breast and looked at Julia Redmond.

"Please give him some money, Mon-sieur."

"The dog?"

again. "Not yet." And he said to the man: "If this is all you have to tell we will give you one hundred francs for this parcel. You can go and don't return here again."

"But it is not all," said the native quietly, looking at Julia.

Her heart began to beat like mad and she looked at the man. His keen dark eyes seemed to pierce her.

"Monsieur," said the American girl boldly, "would you leave me a mo-ment with him? I think he wants to speak with me alone."

But the Duc de Tremont exclaimed in surprise:

"To speak with you alone, Mademoi-selle! Why should he? Such a thing is not possible!"

"Don't go far," she begged, "but leave us a moment, I pray."

When Tremont, with great hesita-tion, took a few steps away from them and she stood face to face with the creature who had been with Sabron and seen him fall, she said earnestly:

"Now speak without reserve. Tell me everything."

The face of the man was trans-formed. He became human, devoted, ardent.

"Excellency," he said swiftly in his halting French, "I love Monsieur le Capitaine. He was so kind and such a brave soldier. I want to go to find Monsieur le Capitaine, but I am ill and too weak to walk. I believe I know where he is hid—I want to go."

The girl breathed:

"Oh, can it be possible that what you say is true, Hammet Abou? Would you really go if you could?"

The man made, with a graceful gesture of his hand, a map in the air.

"It was like this," he said; "I think he drew himself up the bank. I followed the track of his blood. I was too weak to go any farther, Ex-cellency."

"And how could you go now?" she asked.

"By caravan, like a merchant, se-cretly. I would find him."

Julia Redmond put out a slim hand, white as a gardenia. The native lifted it and touched his forehead with it.

"Hammet Abou," she said, "go away for tonight and come tomorrow—we will see you."

And without waiting to speak again to Monsieur de Tremont, the native slid away out of the garden like a shadow, as though his limbs were not weak with disease and his breast shattered by shot.

When Monsieur de Tremont had walked once around the garden, keep-ing his eyes nevertheless on the group, he came back toward Julia Redmond, but not quickly enough, for she ran up the stairs and into the house with Sabron's packet in her hand.

Darken Gray, Faded Hair with Sage Tea

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so natu-rally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; af-ter another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks grand. Mother kept her hair beau-tifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked ap-pearance, this simple mixture was ap-plied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

Phosphorus.
The discovery of phosphorus by Brandt in 1669 was first applied com-mercially as a means of obtaining fire by Godfrey Haulwitz of London, who in 1869, under the direction of Robert Boyle, prepared and sold large quan-tities. It was used for procuring fire by rubbing small particles between the folds of brown paper, and a sul-phur match was ignited from the re-sulting flame; but as phosphorus was both costly and dangerous this in-vention was not long employed.

Much Depends on the Way It's Said.
"I don't claim to be a judge of women," said Noyes E. Brewmore, "but when I call one up I can tell by the short, sharp 'hello!' that I am not the most welcome person in the world. But when she draws out in a soft, purring voice that word 'hello-o-a-a-a,' I feel quite assured that I may report at her domicile long enough to leave a dollar-a-pound box of chocolates."—Kansas City Star.

Dust and Iron in the Appendix.
That foreign bodies in the appendix are often the initial cause of appen-dicitis is a long-explored idea; that is, so far as bodies of any size are con-cerned. But Dr. Carlo Savini of New York reports to the Medical Record that in many cases very minute sharp foreign bodies are found in that organ and, in some cases at least, were probably the cause of the initial lesion. Doctor Savini has recovered from appendices microscopic particles which prove on chemical analysis to be shivers of coal containing a small quantity of iron, sometimes with very sharp cutting edges.

By Breathing into Throat, Nose and Lungs a Pure Antiseptic Air.
If you have catarrh and want to get rid of it you must kill the germs which cause the disease.

The best known way of destroying catarrh germs is to breathe into the air passages of your nose and throat and lungs the pleasant, penetrating air of Hyomei (pronounced High-o-nee). Hyomei is made from purest oil of Eucalyptus combined with other powerful, healing, antiseptic and ger-micidal ingredients. You breathe it through a little pocket inhaler which The People's Drug Store and other leading druggists in Gettysburg and vicinity are furnishing with every complete treatment sold. Every time you inhale the sweet, fragrant air of Hyomei through this little device you are drawing into your swollen, inflam-med, germ laden membranes a medica-ted air which will not only reduce all the swelling and inflammation and open your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages, but will absolutely and pos-itively destroy every trace of Catarrh germ life it reaches. Druggists are so sure of the blessed, lasting relief that Hyomei brings to catarrh suffer-ers that they sell it invariably on the positive guarantee that money paid will be refunded if successful results are not secured from its use.

"To-day Convinced Me That I Need Tonoline."

And one day there comes to most of us the conviction that we, too, must have help—help that rebuilds, restores, replaces the nervous energy that has been so recklessly expended.

It is then that the kindly, tonic influence of Tonoline is appreciated. For after all, that need of help is often but the nerves' need of nourish-ment.

And when Tonoline brings to the starved cells and tissues the very foods they hunger for, in just the form that is most easily taken up, it is not long before relief comes.

We are receiving letters daily from grateful people telling how Tonoline has reconstructed cell and tissue, en-riched the blood, produced keener ap-petite and better slumber and infused the whole system with new vigor.

Prof. B. writes: "I have gained 50 pounds since taking Tonoline and am now at just the weight I desired to be. I can recommend Tonoline to any thin person."

For women who can never appear stylish in anything they wear be-cause of their thinness this remark-able treatment may prove a revelation. It is a beauty maker as well as a form builder and nerve strengthener.

Tonoline costs only $1.00 for 15 days treatment. Mail orders filled by American Proprietary Co., Boston, Mass.—The People's Drug Store, Gettysburg, Pa.

ITALY AT THE POINT OF WAR

Rupture With Austria Expected Any Moment.

WASHINGTON IS NOTIFIED

Both Ask United States to Be Ready to Take Over Their Diplomatic Interests at Vienna and Rome.

Washington, May 20.—Both Austria and Italy have asked the United States to care for their diplomatic interests in Rome and Vienna respectively in the event of a severance of diplomatic relations.

The Washington government has instructed its embassies at the two capitals to be in readiness to do so.

It is regarded in Washington as assured that if Italy and Austria declare a state of war, it will be extended also as between Italy and Germany and Turkey. In that event the Rome government wishes the American ambassadors at Berlin and Constantinople to take over its diplomatic interests.

As yet there has been no request from Germany to have the United States act for it in Rome. Germany is reported to have asked Switzerland to take her interests.

Secretary of State Bryan refused to discuss the addition of the Italian and Austrian interests to those cared for by American embassies in Vienna and Rome, saying such inquiries presupposing war would be improper for him to answer. Nevertheless, it is known that the American embassies abroad have been instructed to employ such additional clerical help as may be necessary and to prepare for the extra work.

Information received recently has tended to indicate Italy's entrance into the European conflict and the opening of parliament today is expected to develop clearly Italy's interests in the present war.

Only Miracle Can Avert War. Berlin, May 20.—The Rome correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt has sent a pessimistic dispatch from the Italian capital, declaring:

"The short parliamentary interlude is ended. The street has won!" "The dispatches to other Berlin newspapers are of a similar tenor. It appears to be generally felt that only a miracle can now avert war between Italy and Austria."

Italians Rapidly Mobilizing. Basle, Switzerland, May 20.—The mobilization of troops is continuing rapidly in upper Italy. Many trains are leaving Milan, carrying soldiers in the direction of the frontier posts.

Envoys Ready to Leave Rome. Rome, May 20.—At the Austrian and German embassies denial was made of the reports that Prince von Buelow, the German ambassador, and Baron von Macchio, the Austrian ambassador, have demanded their passports or that their departure is imminent.

Notwithstanding this denial reports persist that the envoys have been handed their passports and will leave Rome at once.

Admiral Bettolo, the former minister of marine, when asked concerning his impression as to the political situation, said: "My impression is that we shall undoubtedly fight and that we are absolutely certain to win."

A royal decree under which all railroad lines and stations in Italy are placed entirely under the supervision of the military authorities is published by the Official Gazette.

ANOTHER BRITISH SHIP SUNK. Drumcree Torpedoed, But Passengers and Crew Are Saved. Cardiff, Wales, May 20.—The British steamship Drumcree, which left Barry Tuesday, has been torpedoed and sunk in the English channel.

The passengers and crew were saved through the bravery of the crew of a Norwegian steamship. The Drumcree was first torpedoed when off the Cornish coast on Tuesday, but the projectile failed to sink her. She was taken in tow by the Norwegian vessel, but the submarine started in pursuit and the Norwegian steamship cast her off.

A second torpedo finished the Drumcree. She was sinking rapidly, when the Norwegian vessel, perceiving her peril, returned and took off the passengers and crew.

Soldier Weds by Proxy. Paris, May 20.—The first marriage by proxy in this city has taken place at the city hall in the Latin quarter. Alfred Lorin, the bridegroom, who is a soldier in the Seventy-first infantry at the front, was represented by his friend, Firmin Souq. The bride was Mlle. Marie Martigny. The ceremony was performed in strict privacy and the bride wept as she made the responses.

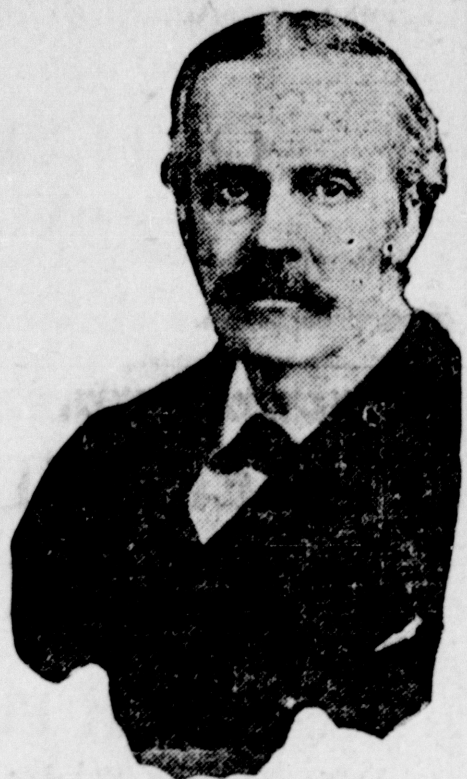

Kaiser on Eastern Front. Amsterdam, May 20.—An official statement issued in Berlin says Emperor William was present Sunday while fighting was in progress on the eastern front, first with the general staff, and later with a division which was struggling to force a crossing of the river San.

June 12—Visit of 300 Knights of Columbus.

June 14—Colored Excursion from Baltimore.

SENATE UNANIMOUS FOR COMPENSATION

Seven Bills Pass Without Debate or Objection.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 20.—The senate passed finally the seven bills providing a system of workmen's compensation.

The seven measures were passed by a vote of 48 to 0, every member present in the senate being recorded for the bills.

The workmen's compensation bills are seven in number. One is the general measure covering the subject of workmen's compensation, one provides for its administration, one creates a state insurance fund, two relate to liability and mutual insurance, one exempts domestic servants and agricultural workers, and the seventh is the constitutional amendment permitting a compulsory compensation law, as the present proposed law is effective.

The schedules of payment for disability and death vary according to differing conditions. Some of the broader provisions, which in some cases are subject to particular modification are as follows:

In cases of total disability, 50 per cent of the wages to be paid for 500 weeks, but the amount must not be less than $5 nor more than $10 weekly, or exceed $4000 in the aggregate.

For partial disability the schedule is 50 per cent of the difference of the wages previously earned and the earning power thereafter, in no case payment to exceed $10 weekly.

A regular schedule for permanent injuries of hands, arms, feet, legs or eyes is provided.

In case of death schedule payments continue for 300 weeks, and payments to children under sixteen, until they reach that age. Payments to a childless widow or widower amount to 40 per cent of wages; 45 per cent if there is one child; 50 per cent if two; 55 per cent if three; 60 per cent if four or more.

Murder Juries to Fix Penalties. Harrisburg, Pa., May 20.—The house passed finally the bill giving juries in murder cases the right to fix the degree of punishment, whether death or life imprisonment.

Make a meringue of the egg whites and powdered sugar and bake twelve minutes longer in a slow oven. Serve warm with cream.—Country Gentleman.

Lemon Cream Pie.

Mix one cupful of sugar with three tablespoonfuls of flour; then add three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, the yolks of two eggs, slightly beaten, one cupful of sweet milk, one tablespoonful of melted butter, a little salt and the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Bake in one crust in a moderate oven. The white of the egg rises to the top, making a little "self frosting" which adds to the dainty appearance of the pie.

Apple Cream Pie.

Stew good tart apples, rub through a sieve or press through a fruit press. While warm add one large tablespoonful of butter. Beat together the yolks of two eggs, one-half cupful of sugar and the juice of one lemon. Then add the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs and mix all with the apples. Line a pie tin with a good pastry, pour into it the mixture and bake until done. When cold cover with whipped cream.

KNOW THY COUNTRY

I—Introductory

"Know America" is a slogan that should ring out from every school room, office, farm and shop in this nation. No man can aspire to a higher honor than to become a capable citizen, and no one can merit so distinguished a title until he is well informed of the resources, possibilities and achievements of our country.

This is a commercial age and civilization is bearing its most golden fruit in America. We are noted for our industrial achievements as Egypt was noted for her pyramids; Jerusalem for her religion; Greece for her art; Phoenicia for her fleets; Chaldea for her astronomy and Rome for her laws. Likewise we have men who go down in the world's history as powerful products of their age. For, standing at the source of every gigantic movement that sways civilization is a great man. The greatest minds travel in the greatest direction and the commercial geniuses of this age would have been the sculptors, poets, philosophers, architects, and artists of earlier civilizations.

As Michael Angelo took a rock and with a chisel hewed it into the image of an angel that ever beckons mankind upward and onward, Hill took the desert of the Northwest and with bands of steel made it blossom like a rose, dotted the valleys with happy homes and built cities in waste places.

As Gutenberg took blocks of wood and whittled them into an alphabet and made a printing press that flashed education across the continent like a ray of light upon a new born world, McCormick took Fairy Gingercakes.

One cupful of molasses, one-half cupful of sugar, one heaping tablespoonful hard, one egg, one cupful sour milk with one teaspoonful soda stirred in until it begins to foam over top of cup, one teaspoonful ginger. About a pint of sifted flour, making a rather thin light dough. It will be light like a sponge if not mixed too stiff. Can omit ginger and use spices and raisins if desired.

Pineapple Salad.

Make a dressing of one-half cupful of pineapple juice, juice of one-half a lemon, yolks of two eggs and one-half teaspoonful cornstarch. Cook to a thick custard, and add a little cream before serving. Put two slices of pineapple on lettuce leaves and cover with dressing, then put a little grated cheese and chopped walnuts on top.

Removing Grease Spots.

A grease spot on the carpet may be removed easily if one will act quickly. First scrape off all that can be removed with a knife, then give the spot a thorough coating of cornmeal, rub in well and as this is brushed out it will carry the grease with it. If any of the grease remains, lay a blotting paper over the spot and press with a warm iron.

Paraffining Jelly.

In using paraffin to cover jelly, if one will put a lump of the wax in the glass before pouring in the juice, it melts and rises to the top, doing away with the trouble of melting wax and putting on after jelly is cool. A piece the size of a flbert is enough for an ordinary jelly glass.

Varnish Stains on White Goods.

Varnish stains will be easily removed from white goods by moistening the stain with ammonia. Then put on a few drops of turpentine and roll it up. Leave it rolled for about fifteen minutes, then wash out with soapy water, rinse thoroughly and dry in the sun.

To Clean Suede Shoes.

Put the shoes on shoe trees, but if you do not possess these, stuff the shoes with soft paper. Then rub well with a rag moistened with spirits of turpentine. When this is finished place the shoes in the air to dry and no smell of turpentine will remain.

Ham Balls.

One cupful of boiled potato, one onion and one cupful of ham, chopped. Season with salt and pepper, add a well beaten egg and a little milk. Form into small balls, roll in meal and fry in hot, deep fat. Serve on buttered toast.

Left $1 to Pay for Suicide Gas. Mrs. Elizabeth Heck, a widow of East Orange, N. J., sixty-four years old, who committed suicide at her home by asphyxiation, left a note inclosing $1 to pay for the gas she used in killing herself. A short time before she heard a neighbor play music and told a friend she felt like dancing again.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

PICKLES AND CONSERVES.

THE recipes following can all be very highly recommended, the first being a southern delicacy that comes from a New Orleans housekeeper:

Sweet Pickle Relish.—The ingredients required are one dozen salt pickles, to be purchased at almost any grocery shop; one pound of light brown sugar, a spice bag containing eight whole cloves, one tablespoonful of whole allspice and two sticks of cinnamon, broken into small pieces; about one pint of cider vinegar and a quarter of a pound of seeded raisins. Cut the pickles in slices one inch thick. Place the pickles, raisins and sugar in a stone crock and let them remain overnight. In the morning drain off a little of the watery liquid (not the sugar), turn into a preserving kettle, cover with the vinegar and add the spice bag. Boil for fifteen minutes; then remove the pickles and cook down the sirup with the raisins until it is as thick as honey. Return the pickles to the sirup, let it all boil up once more and seal in self sealing jars, as one does with preserves. This pickle will keep for a long time.

Apple Ginger Conserve.—Use tart, juicy apples for this relish. Peel and cut the apples into eighths. Place them in a large graniteware kettle, arranging them in layers, and sprinkle brown sugar generously between each layer. Then add to each quart of the peeled and cut fruit the grated yellow rind of one lemon, a small cupful of chopped preserved ginger and sufficient vinegar to barely cover the fruit. Allow the apples to stand overnight, and in the morning place over a moderate fire and bring slowly to the boiling point. Simmer until the fruit is tender, but not broken; then skim out the apples and boil down the sirup until quite thick. Seal all, boiling hot, in air tight jars.

Spiced Peaches.—Wash the dried or evaporated peaches and soak them overnight with cold water to cover. Then drain and to five pounds of the fruit use two pounds of sugar, one-quarter of an ounce of cinnamon, the same quantity of ground cloves and mace and one quart of vinegar. Put the vinegar in a graniteware kettle with the sugar and the spices in a small cheesecloth bag. Simmer this sirup for fifteen minutes; then put in the peaches to cook until tender. Watch the fruit carefully, stirring occasionally, for the fruit will scorch easily. If gas is used for cooking a small asbestos pad over the burner is recommended. Seal in air tight jars.

STRIKING PARALLELS IN DEATHS ON LUSITANIA AND TITANIC.

Some striking parallels suggest themselves in a comparison of the death rolls of the Lusitania and the Titanic disasters.

John Jacob Astor was the most conspicuous American lost on the Titanic, as Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt was on the Lusitania. Each inherited a great fortune, each was a dominant figure in the social life of New York, each died in gallant self sacrifice.

Henry B. Harris was a notable figure in the theatrical world when the Titanic ended his career. Charles Frohman, when the Lusitania went down was perhaps the most distinguished figure in the managerial world.

Jacques Futrelle was in the full flower of his fame as a writer when he became a passenger on the Titanic. Justus Miles Forman had come to a like period when he went on the Lusitania.

William T. Stead was an eminent figure among English journalists when he died on the Titanic. Elbert Hubbard, who died on the Lusitania, was at least as well known among American journalists.

JOHN BUNNY DIED POOR MAN.

High Salaried Film Actor Left Only $8,000, Widow Says.

Although John Bunny was one of the highest paid film actors in the world, he apparently died comparatively poor. According to the petition of his widow, Clara, filed for probate in New York, Bunny's estate will not exceed $8,000.

The entire property, which is personal, is left to Mrs. Bunny.

CREAM COLORS FOR SEPARATE WAISTS.

A separate waist of cream colored taffeta trimmed with dark brown silk, featuring the new applied front, pleated into a deep belt.

During the summer cream tones are to be the craze, and it must be remembered that cream color is an elastic term, including various shades between one not quite white to one which barely escapes being yellow. This beautiful waist is fashioned of delicate cream colored taffeta, trimmed with very narrow delicate cream colored taffeta, trimmed with very narrow piping of brown silk. It has a high neck with turn-down collar, and the short sleeves are gathered at the elbows and finished with narrow frills. The applied front is pleated into a deep belt of self-material and closes at the left side of the front.

Pussy willow and chiffon taffeta come wider than the plain taffetas, and, although they cost a little more, they are more economical in the end. It requires but 1 1/2 yard of 44-inch silk to make this waist, and much can be saved by the proper handling of the material when cutting. The back, collar and applied front are laid on a lengthwise fold of the silk so that these sections will be seamless. If tiny tucks, shirings or extra ornamentation are to be added to the applied front it is better to do this before the pattern is laid upon the goods. In this even the silk is folded just the same and the tissue placed into position along the fold.

The front, sleeve, underfacing and belt all cut double are laid on a lengthwise thread of the material. For a V-shaped neck without rovers cut out the neck edge of the front on small "r" perforations. Provision is also made for regulating the length of the sleeve.

The touch of brown added in the piping gives the waist an exquisite touch of chic. Of course the model is suitable to development in less expensive materials, and next to taffeta there is nothing more serviceable than China silk.

His Happiest Day

By F. A. MITCHELL

There is something in a July morning that bespeaks not returning life, like April or May, or growing life, like June, but ripening life. The sun shines hot, there is the hum of industrious insects, and pleasant still is the sound of a distant mowing machine. It is this mellowed rattle that bespeaks July. It denotes long swaths of ripened grain lying on the ground ready to be gathered into barns, then to be made into bread to give strength to millions of people.

It was such a morning as this that Mary Robbins, a farmer's daughter, caught the sound of the mowing machine down in her father's wheatfield. The day before a young man had applied for work. He was a strapping, manly fellow, with a pair of honest eyes toward which his thick hair grew, and he was continually tossing his head to throw it back. He had been engaged for the harvest, and now he was driving that mowing machine whose rattle was wafted up to the farmhouse on the breeze.

"It's a mighty hot mornin'," said Mary to herself, "and I don't envy that young feller sweatin' out there in the sun, drivin' round that square field. He's been out there since 7 o'clock, and it's now 10. He must need a snack. I'll just put some of that bacon that was left over from breakfast between two slices of bread, get some milk out of the springhouse and take 'em down to him."

A little later John Horton, the farm hand, paused to give his lathered horses a rest and, looking up, saw the farmer's daughter from the waist upward above the waving wheat.

"Putty as a sail ridin' the waves," he remarked to himself. "She seems to be heading straight this way."

Presently Mary emerged from the standing wheat, treading upon that which had fallen. Then the young man saw that in one hand she carried something rolled in a napkin, while in the other was a large tin cup. He wiped the sweat from his brow that he might see more clearly, and something pleasurable rose up in his breast when he realized what was coming.

"Gettin' hungry?" said Mary, with a smile, as she reached the farm hand and, unrolling the white napkin, displayed the sandwich.

"Waal, now, ain't this jist too fine for anything?"

He took the sandwich, and as his teeth struck the succulent bacon the expression on his face would have served for an advertisement for a prepared food. Then he took the cup and drained half of it at a gulp, and it seemed as if he had poured the essence of joy into his stomach.

"It's a long spell between breakfast and dinner," said Mary. "I just thort you'd like a leetle sittin' up, so I brought you a snack."

They had never met till the night before, and since the young man was a stranger to her and Mary did not wish to appear bold, she turned to go back to the house.

"Can't you wait a bit," said John. "Till I finish the milk so you kin take back the cup?"

"Oh, I'm in no considerable hurry," replied the girl, and she stood still.

"This milk is cold," said John, "and they say a heap of cold milk put sudden into the stomach is liable to bring on colic."

He looked at a tree beyond the fence. Mary took the hint and said it would be better for him to eat his snack in the shade. He let down a few rails, they stepped over the rest and, going to the tree, sat down on the grass. John finished his refreshment, but Mary made no move to return to the farmhouse, and he did not resume his mowing.

The sweetest moments neither wealth nor power can buy. The cool breezes blew upon these two young persons; the decked sunbeams danced upon the grass about them. They were tasting the incipient sensation of two hearts drawing together, delicious as the first swallow of rare wine. The July scenery was around them with its odor of production. The mowing machine was silent. The horses were switching the flies with their tails.

"Mary!"

A woman's voice, the voice of Mary's mother, came over the fields from the house. At the same time the sound of a horn came from a neighboring farm.

"La sakes," cried Mary, "it's dinner time!"

That evening after supper Farmer Robbins paid John Horton a day's wages and told him to move on. John knew the reason, but said nothing. Inwardly he remarked that the two hours he had spent with Mary were worth a discharge ten times over.

Farmer Robbins locked the stable door after the horse had been stolen. It may require a burglar ten minutes to steal a watch; a girl's heart may be stolen during a flash of lightning. John Horton had stolen, through no fault of his, Mary's heart, but he declined to steal Mary from her father. He went away, but several years later he passed that way and found Farmer Robbins dead and Mary working the farm. He was engaged as manager and married her.

But he declares that the happiest day of his life was the day he was discharged for spending his time in the shade of a tree instead of attending to his farm work.

It was certainly an important day, for it brought him a wife.

Very True.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Captain T. L. Huston, Part
Owner of the Yanks.

Captain Thomas L. Huston, who, with Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owns the New York American Baseball club, is forty-seven years old and is an engineer and contractor by profession. He got his military title in the Spanish-American war and since that time has won fame and fortune dredging the more important harbors of Cuba. Captain Huston has always been an enthusiastic baseball fan and since acquiring wealth has desired to become owner of a big league team. It was he who made the mysterious bid for the Chicago Cubs last summer and for awhile had an option on them. He would not take the club, however, unless he could get John McGraw to manage it, and, finding that could not be arranged, he gave up the project. Last winter he and Colonel Ruppert bought the New York Yanks outright.

Mile a Minute Hydroplane.

Commodore James A. Pugh, the millionaire Chicago sportsman, has started construction of a twenty foot hydroplane into which he will crowd 2,000 horse power.

The new boat, to be christened Disturber V, will be, by all odds, the most heavily powered twenty foot hydroplane in the world, and Commodore Pugh's experiments are watched by speedboat men with immense interest. The new boat is designed by Ned Simmons of Chicago, who planned the Disturber IV, which went to England last year and was deprived of the opportunity of lifting the Harmsworth international trophy by the outbreak of the war, which caused the cancellation of the race. He expects the new Disturber to turn sixty miles per hour. The twenty footer has twenty-four cylinders.

Kling's Foresight.

Johnny Kling when he was a major league baseball catcher believed that idleness did not pay. Consequently the ex-Cub today is earning more money than he did when he was a member of the world's championship Chicago club. He is a billiard expert and in addition owns a handsome billiard room in Kansas City. And all this came about because he refused to be idle.

"I found that I liked billiards when I was a young man and devoted my spare time to that game. I did not do it merely as recreation, but with the idea that I would learn the game and the business and devote my time to it in the off season and when I quit baseball. Billiards is a scientific pastime, requiring a good eye and steady nerve. That is ideal recreation for a ball player."

A New Golf Marvel.

Harry K. B. Davis of San Francisco, who surprised the golfing world by beating a field including such prominent players as "Chick" Evans, Heinrich Schmidt, H. Chandler Egan and others, was never heard of in golf circles until late last summer, when his first real stunt was the defeat of Jack Neville. Davis is originally of Colorado Springs, having gone to Portland, Ore., from his home town and from there to San Francisco last fall. He gained national prominence by his performances in the tournament held under the auspices of the Panama-Pacific exposition, April 19-25.

The Best Shortstops.

President Tener says the National League is better equipped with shortstops than the American. He names Bancroft of the Phillies, Maranville of the Braves, Fletcher of the Giants, O'Mara of the Dodgers, Herzog of the Reds and Gerber of the Pirates. President Johnson has filed a denunciation, declaring that his league boasts of real stars in Barry of the Athletics, Peckinpaugh of the Yankees, Scott of the Red Sox, Bush of the Tigers, Weaver of the White Sox and McBride of the Senators. Take your pick.

Players Pick Killifer.

National League players say that William Killifer of the Phillies is far and away the best catcher in that circuit, and they do not except Archer of the Cubs.

Friendship.

If a friend of mine gave a feast and did not invite me to it, I should not mind a bit. But if a friend of mine had a sorrow and refused to allow me to share it, I should feel it most bitterly.—Oscar Wilde.
